

Across the Sea

Sean Fournier

Every star I see tonight reminds me of your eyes
and how they used to sparkle
when they looked right into mine.
Oh, can see them.

A message in a bottle
is somewhere in the sea
and like the hope I placed inside,
it's floating aimlessly.
Oh, I believe it, but I'm somewhere
across the sea.

I had hope, but then I lost it.
I buried it in the sand
'cause I've been stranded for 6 long years
and nobody knows where I am.

It started out when my girlfriend left me.
She had to move across the sea.
So I bought a boat that I lost to a storm
and I washed up on this beach.

Well, you can used to crying.
I always feel a little sad,
but I'll never see her pretty face again
and ill never get used to that.

Sometimes I lay awake thinking
when the stars in my vision blur.
Well, I pretend as I talk to the wind
it carries my whispers to her.

Oh God if you can hear me.
You're my only friend.
Just one day could you calm the sea?
So I can see my baby again.
