Starspawn

Behemoth

I am thine own begotten, Dionysus
Divine Mars, thou call'st me son
And thou, Apollo, my begin gav'st me
That dream hath my mind inflamedAnd everyone a star hath become
My brothers and sisters in cosmic ectasy
Millions of sins and virtues were they
And all, the whole wealth of my lifeThat neither the end nor the beginning had
I could bestow
StarspawnExploring our gracious flight, hiher
We could make love to numberless stars
With our tiny hand the world embrace
Learn it and forget it, be begotten and dieForever exist, only mightier and absolute
Myself am Solaris, universe and oneness
Nothingness and chaos
Am I the last bow to thee, EarthBefore I ride a cosmic snake
And devour the stars
Before I become the beast
And no mortal man durst my magic defyPlanet Satan, receive the eternal possessor
Me for myself I ascend thee
Me for the world
