

Mirror

Husky

Joan, ain't it cold out
But your father's coat is warm
He gave it to me the night of the storm
Huddled round the radio he smiled
And said that I could take it for a while Joan , I need it
And there's fire in my heart
It's been burning from the very start
Nothing seems to put it out like you
Nothing seems to put it out like you Mirror to the sun
I will wake you
When the storm is done
Time will take you
Walk but never run
For the steps you take will chime
The steps you take will chime Joan, ain't it coming
Like a rush of sanity
To wake me from this oceany sleep
I remember everything down here
But one by one my thoughts they disappear
Joan, get ready for the time's already near
The notes make up the melody you hear
No matter what you fear you may have done
There is nothing you can't overcome
