Your Baby

Slow Rollin' Lows

She saved her number in his phone as "your baby", and he thought their love would never end, now he's on the verge of going crazy and all he wants is to hear from her again

Well he sat alone staring at her picture, wondering when and how their love went wrong, with a broken heart you know it's hard to figure why he keeps playing them sad old songs

And he keeps thinking about her remembering all the words that she said, and that phone is by his side when he lays down at night to go to bed, he knows that she won't call but he's hoping maybe , he's banged his head against the wall waiting on that call from "your baby"

By the light of day he tried to hide his pain, he always wore a smile when she came around, she never knew that he went insane when he saw her face his heart hit the ground

Well that call finally came and he was sober, when he spoke to her he spilled his soul, but then she told him that it was really over and when hung up that phone he lost all control

And he keeps thinking about her remembering all the words that she said, and that phone is by his side when he lays down at night to go to bed, he knows that she won't call but he's hoping maybe , he's banged his head against the wall waiting on that call from "your baby"

Yeah lord he lost it all , last time he got that call from "your baby"

She saved her number in his phone as "your baby", and he thought their love would never end

Lyrics Submitted by Jordon Dempsey

Lyrics provided by https://damnlyrics.com/