

Europa

Prozzak

i remember like it's yesterday the song we used to sing what was its name danced together till the break of day and i knew i'd never be the same now so many winters turn to spring >but where is the love that i thought they would bring sit and think about that girl from spain and how we used to sing lalalalalala...la...la...la...europa lalalalalala...la...la...la...europa london amsterdam and gay paris don't mean that much to me they're all the same people falling but no one for me they can never match that girl from spain now so many years have past me by and still i long for that sweet spanish sky senorita do you think of me and of this melody lalalalalala...la...la...la...europa lalalalalala...la...la...la...europa >a box of letters and a photograph are all that's left to keep our memory sometimes i swear that i can hear you laugh like a ghost of what could never be at night i will look across the sea and wonder if you could be looking at me the ocean haunts me like a symphony that plays our melody lalalalalala...la...la...la...europa lalalalalala...la...la...la...europa
