

You're the Man

Marvin Gaye

Talkin', talkin' to the people
Tryin' to get them to go your way
Tellin' lies, not to worry
That we won't be led astray So blind, unsignified
Your opponents always lying
Think about the mistakes you make
I believe America's at stake You know, busin', busin' is the issue
If you have a plan wager
If you have a plan
If you've got a master plan Got to vote for you
Hey hey, got to vote for you
You're the man
We don't want to hear no more lies About how you planned a compromise
We want our dollar value increased
Employment to rise
The nation's taxation Is causin' all, all this inflation
Don't give us no V sign
Turn around and rob the people blind
Economics is the issue Do you have a plan wager?
'Cause if you've got a master plan
Got to vote for you
You're the man (8 times, over scat singing):
Don't you understand?
There's misery in the land
(One version fades out during this; read further for a longer version)
People marching on Washington
Better hear what they have to say
'Cause the tables just might turn against you, brother
Set around Election Day
Politics and hypocrites
Is turning us all into lunatics
Can you take the guns from our sons?
Right all the wrongs this administration has done?
Peace and freedom is the issue
Do you have a plan wager?
If you've got a plan
If you've got a master plan
Got to vote for you
Hey hey, got to vote for you

'Cause you're the man
(repeat and fade):
Got to vote for you

Songwriters

Irving, Craig L. / Vieira, Mary Ann / Butler, Ishmael R. / Stover, Elgie Rousseau / Gaye, Marvin P
Published by Lyrics © Sony/ATV Music Publishing LLC, Universal Music Publishing Group Song Discussions is protected by U.S. Patent 9401941. Other patents pending.

Lyrics provided by <https://damnllyrics.com/>