Summer Snow

Keith Green

Unexpectedly you came back to see
If I'd was waiting like I promised long before
Your shadow filled the room, the music changed it's tune
When I saw you, you were standing at the doorLike summer snow, You were an unexpected sight
A blazing sun, you were shining in the night
When I really should have known, that you'd be coming homeI waited patiently but I found it hard to see
If you were coming, why was there such a long delay?
At times I thought you lied or else you would have tried
To let me know that you were coming home todayLike summer snow, it falls around me in the cold
I can hear the echoes of the warnings I was told
That I should know, that you'd be coming home
