

Stranded

Vonray

Once you told me that you'd be there til the end of time
Now it seems you've got another thing on your mind
Every step I take seems to get you closer
Now you've finally crossed that line Superficial game of mental hide and seek again
Taking chances with the ones you always called your friends
Trying hard to find piece of mind
Now time takes its toll again Don't think, you've left me stranded
I'll be miles from where you found me
I only hope you feel my discontent I can't help but think that this is how it should have been Making light of all this hell that I've been living in Taking chances never was my best defense
But tell me how else can I win? Expectations fall apart I'm on my own again
I'm seeing clearly for the first time in my life my friend
Your perceptions just a little out of touch
Now time, it helps you understand Don't think, you've left me stranded
I'll be miles from where you found me
I only hope you feel my discontent
My discontent
My discontent, yeah Superficial game of mental hide and seek again
Taking chances with the ones you always called your friends
Trying hard to find this peace of mind we started with
You never let me in
Now time takes its toll again Don't think you've left me stranded
I'll be fine if time allows it
I always saw right through your best intent
Your best intent Don't think you've left me stranded
I'll be miles from where you found me
I only hope you feel my discontent
My discontent
My discontent

Songwriters

James Vaughan Rhea; Charles Shea Published by DWIGHT FRYE MUSIC INC. (SEE NOTES); SHEA HOUSE ROCK PUBLISHING

Lyrics provided by

<https://damnllyrics.com/>