Emilie Autumn

Witches and Satanists we have been named
Over the years we've been murdered and maimed
Mothers and daughters and sisters and wives
All have the power - we gave you your lives
Nothing can ever reverse what's been done

But we'll try with the birth of each daughter and son(That is one of my first poems, written as a ridiculously serious child. Already young to know how to rhyme, let alone the pipsqueak becomes a feminist. But oh, well. It has to start somewhere.)
