

Long Forgotten Sons

Rise Against

Far from home on a road unknown
Where the vultures circle on winds that blow
From northern skies that haunt these waking moments
 On shadows cast by the mountain range
 On calloused soles we find our way
Through desperate eyes, we long for the horizon
 While this sun is rising, yeah
 We are the long forgotten sons
And daughters that don't belong to anyone
 We are alone under this sun
We work to fix the work that you've undone
 When cries for help go unanswered
 And signal fires just burn and burn
We'll wonder if we're waiting here for nothing
 'Cause our lips are sewn, our ears are filled
 With the constant drone of the unfulfilled
But we'll never fall if we stand for something
 We stand for something, yeah
 Yeah, we are the long forgotten sons
And daughters that don't belong to anyone
 And we are alone under this sun
We work to fix the work that you've undone
Don't fall, I see lights in the distance, they're not far away
 Stand up because the sky is turning gray
 There's hope in these footsteps of persistence
So don't go astray, these lights get closer everyday
 We are the long forgotten sons
 Yeah, we are the long forgotten sons
 We are the long forgotten sons
And daughters that don't belong to anyone
 And we are alone under this sun
We work to fix the work that you've undone
 What you've undone
