InMemory

so let's pretend that you're someone who's worth this train wreck i'll let my ego split in half as she's approaching together, we'll chant outloud the satisfaction lose ourselves so we're not foundyou don't know me i'm permanent you don't know me i'm permanent
and you don't know the halffrom fire to fading embers she remains fragile under stage lights
we both aren't sure i beg for a purpose
take my hand we'll make it through
the satisfaction
and lose ourselves so we're not foundyou don't know me i'm permanent
you don't know the haaallllfffi like to think that i'm someone who's wings have grown enough to lift him and i like to think that i'm someone who's wings have grown enough to life him
