

Nobody Told Me

David Ball

I bumped my knee hit a chair
I felt no pain it's like nothings there Completely numb from outside in am I even here, have I ever been Should I be lying somewhere as cold as I can be
With my named carved on a stone in loving memory
Like a ghost searching for the old me
Maybe I died when you left and nobody told me. I still drive by our favorite place
But all I am is a nameless face
And when I leave all they say as
That he's been gone since you went away Should I be lying somewhere as cold as I can be
With my named carved on a stone in loving memory
Like a ghost searching for the old me
Maybe I died when you left and nobody told me.
