

Just a Boy

Harry Connick, Jr.

The last days in May before summer lay claim
Back in the school yard, we made up a game
 Now is always, is always the same
 Too bad always always endsI remember
 I remember when
 But I was just
Just a boy thenInnocent envy without compromise
 Recommendations all ill advised
 Tall tales and little white lies
 The truth had to bendI remember
 I remember when
 But I was just
Just a boy thenNow that we're tall and all grown
 A house, a car lives of our own
 We put off but we can't postpone
 The way we become menI remember
 I remember when
 But I was just
 Just a boy then
