

Every Little Thing

Delirious?

Everything must change
There's a mirror showing me the ugly truth
These bones they ache with holy fire
But I've got nothing to give, just a life to live
If your world is without color
I will carry you, if you carry me
Every little thing's gonna be alright
Every little thing's gonna be alright
Every little thing's gonna be alright
Every little thing's gonna be alright
There's no one else to blame
I live my life between the fire and the flame
I've built my house where the ocean meets the land
It's time to live again, pull my dreams out of the sand
Let your world be full of color
I will carry you, if you carry me
When it's all falling down on you
You're crying out but you're breaking in two
When it's all crashing down on you
When there's nothing you can do
There is someone who can carry you

Lyrics provided by

<https://damnllyrics.com/>