Take You Home

Scars on 45

I don't know which way the river bends
But I'll follow it to the bitter end
Across that ocean, bent and broken
Just to find you, my friendSometimes all the wheels can just fall right off
The price is too high to afford the cost
But there's no need to feel like all is lostI'll take you home
Right through the storm to your front door
You're not alone
You will never have to fear
'Cause I will always be right here with you (you, you)
I will always be right here with you
You can try
To erase me from your troubled mind
But I won't leave, I'll be right by your sideEvery time you try to say goodbye to me
Sometimes all the wheels can just fall right off
Sometimes everything you've got is not enoughBut there's no need to feel like all is lost
I'll take you home
Right through the storm to your front door
You're not alone
You will never have to fear'Cause I will always be right here with you (you, you)
I will always be right here with you
Sometimes all the wheels can just fall right offIt's hard to get it going when the going gets tough
But there's no need to feel like all is lost
I'll take you home
Right through the storm to your front door
I'll take you home
Right through the storm to your front door
You're not alone
You will never have to fear
'Cause I will always be right here with you (you, you)
I will always be right here with you (you, you)
I will always be right here with you
