Divine Design

The Mulligan Brothers

These days I feel just like a souvenir
That someone gave to you from somewhere far away
Only here for you to cuss me every time you have to dust me
Don't want me, but you keep me anyway
You don't want me, by just keep me anyway

It's not OK and that's alright
Whatever gets you through the night
It's a fine time to define the line that I'm behind
It's a fine time to define the line that I'm behind

I feel like I'm the leader of the free world
Mediating between people without names
They'd rather burn the whole thing down
Than try to find some common ground
So eventually we'll all go up in flames
Yeah, eventually we'll all go up in flames

It's not OK and that's alright
Whatever gets you through the fight
It's a fine time to define the line that I'm behind
It's a fine time to define the line that I'm behind
It's not OK and that's alright
Whatever gets you through the night
If this is divine design then divine design is behind the times
If this is divine design then divine design is behind the times

I feel like a suit of second-hand armor
It can protect you but may never wear a shine
And every time you see me
You know I'll be there when you need me
Never thinking of the dead man left inside
Pay no mind to the dead man left inside

It's not OK and that's alright
Whatever gets you through the night
It's a fine time to define the line that I'm behind
It's not OK and that's alright
Whatever gets you through the fight
If this is divine design then divine design is behind the times

If this is divine design then divine design is behind the times
If this is divine design then divine design is behind the times

Lyrics Submitted by May

Lyrics provided by https://damnlyrics.com/