The Road

Aaron Lewis

I have wandered a million miles
Suffered, many times
Felt the weakness when I was strong
Held sweetness when it was wrong
I've touched high and low but wherever I go
The road, always returns to you
My love, it still belongs to you
Seen you crying tears of rain
I know, I caused you pain
Left you shattered on the ground
But what matters is here and now
'Cause all that I know is wherever I go
The road always returns to you
My love, it still belongs to you
All the bridges that I've build are unbroken
All the memories that live come with knowing
Every thing I've never done
Every thing I've ever done
The road always returns to you
And my love, it still belongs to you
Oh, the road always returns to you
Oh, my love, it still belongs all to you
It still belongs to you
Always returns to you
It still belongs to you
My love still belongs to you

Lyrics provided by https://damnlyrics.com/