

Lover All Alone

Clay Aiken

Maybe I've convinced myself I've really been in love
And I've been wrong all along
For all I know the feeling and the picture
That I've tried so hard to find isn't mine
Could be it's all just a waiting game
Wanna share my everything And on my own it's hard to tell my heart it will be alright
This love it holds will one day find a home
As hard as love can be, it's harder still it seems
To be a lover all alone without love Picking up the pieces makes me wonder if I only built it all to watch it fall
And the faster it can go away it means the less of me
Has gone to stay and I'm okay
But a lonesome tomorrow comes anyway
I'm alone for another day, another day And on my own it's hard to tell my heart it will be alright
That this love it holds will one day find a home
As hard as love can be, it's harder still it seems
To be a lover all alone without love And on my own it's hard to tell my heart it will be alright
And this love it holds will one day find a home
As hard as love can be, it's harder still it seems
To be a lover all alone without love
A lover all alone without love Maybe I've convinced myself I've really been in love
But I've been wrong all along

Lyrics provided by

<https://damnllyrics.com/>