

Part II (Paramore 2013)

Paramore

What a shame, what a shame we all remain
Such fragile broken few
A beauty have the trade, butterflies with punctured wings
Still there are darkened glimpses deep in my heart
What once was blazing like now, there's a tiny scar
Oh glory, come and find me
Oh glory, come and find me
Dancing all alone
To the sound of an enemy's song
I'll be lost until you find me
Fighting on my own
In a war that's already been won
I'll be lost until you come and find me here, oh glory
Here
What a mess, what a mystery we've made
Put loving in the simple things
Loving to forgive
Even when it was an odd mistake
I question every human, who won't look in my eyes
Scars left on my heart formed buttons in my mind
Oh glory, you will find me
Dancing all alone
To the sound of an enemy's song
I'll be lost until you find me
Fighting on my own
In a war that's already been won
I'll be lost until you come and find me here, oh glory
Like the moon, we borrow our light
I am nothing but a shadow in the night
So if you let me, I will catch fire
To let your glory and mercy shine

Songwriters

HAYLEY WILLIAMS, JUSTIN JOHNSEN, TAYLOR YORK

Published by

Lyrics © Warner/Chappell Music, Inc. Song Discussions is protected by U.S. Patent 9401941. Other patents pending.

Lyrics provided by

<https://damnllyrics.com/>