

Wanderer's lament

Chris Robinson Brotherhood

Dreamer come spring time water's running quick black winged dance of fireflies in the garden where we sit never dream to gypsy of rollin' over stone an eternity, an instant, forever, a heart of coal yellow burns the summer no grave shall go to waste hold my hand and let's go under to be reborn in some new place where our souls are never strangers let our shadows find the day as we stand in the light of our love until we fly away
You're never alone
you're never alone
if there's thunder and rain
the wonder of love
the weakness of love
makes us all the same
I get so tired of treading the wake and I'm not afraid of empty pain To take away such sorrow to give another your hand you are no untamed daughter oh let the water, let the water wash it all away morning's cold and these lonely wild geese fly away I will build you a fire if you'll be my serenade come a tender new season come a somber July come any way come any how you will find me by your side You're never alone
you're never alone
if there's thunder and rain
the wonder of love
the weakness of love
makes us all the same
I get so tired of treading the wake
and I'm not afraid of empty pain

and I'm not afraid of empty pain

Song Discussions is protected by U.S. Patent 9401941. Other patents pending.

Lyrics provided by

<https://damnyrics.com/>