

Patience

Geographer

patience
all my patience is gone lately
I just can't keep holding on 'til tomorrow
cause I've been waiting here too long just to be patient let me let me know who you are you've kept me long enough inside the dark but flowers will only grow beneath the sun I wish you'd let me patience is a virtue
love just can't be wrong silence is golden
so I'll just sing along I know your walls will soon defend me I'll be glad then that they're strong and if haste will make me waste your love then I will learn to crawl and just be patient hoping I keep hoping for a sign just a taken cause faith is best left to the blind but knowing would be such fuel for the fire but I'll keep hoping patience is a virtue
love just can't be wrong
silence is golden
so I'll just sing along
I know your walls will soon defend me
I'll be grateful then that they're strong I know haste will make me waste it all so I will learn to crawl and just be patient if I could know which way the wind blows haste will only make me waste your love so I will learn to crawl and just be patient

Song Discussions is protected by U.S. Patent 9401941. Other patents pending.

Lyrics provided by <https://damnyrics.com/>