

I Will Go

Crystal Lewis

copyright Crystal Lewis, Brian Ray and he said come and follow me. i'm calling out, i want you to be a fisherman to fish for those who're drowning in a scowling sea of loneliness and pain; confusion, hurt, worry, shame
i'm holding out my hand and yet they don't hear me call their names i want you to be the one to tell them that the kingdom's come and give them all the truth and joy that you've been given by the son will you go wherever i lead be light in the dark
be salt in the street
will you go no matter the cost will you live for the lost so they'll know of the cross will you go...i said oh, no, lord not me. i'm not good enough to go you see i mean, what if they laugh or worst. start throwing things and i get hurt besides that, what would i say. i think there's been a big mistake lord, please ask this of someone else. i can't go...i'm too afraid i want you to be the one to tell them that the kingdom's come
be light in the dark
be salt in the street
will you go...and he said yes, some will cover their ears and they will not want to hear you must stand and say it still, be brave my child and do not fear for it is my words you'll speak and a promise i will keep you safe and sound within my will...i'm your strength when you're weak i will go wherever you lead be the light in the dark and be salt in the street i will go no matter the cost i will live for the lost
so they'll know of the cross
i will go...
