

You're An Education

Michael Feinstein

Must I memorize a book
To be considered wise
When I can look into your eyes? Literature is such a bore
And mathematics too
I'd much prefer to learn about you You're the only kind of knowledge
They don't teach at any college
You're an education in yourself There are poems and romances
In the glamor of your glances
You're an education in yourself Of all the famous dates in history
I recall but a few
The fourth of July
And my dates with you You've a kiss that's scientific
Though it's tender it's terrific
You're an education in yourself You're the kind of mental training
I could take without complaining
You're an education in yourself Intricate as economics
Simple as the Sunday comics
You're an education in yourself And there are geometric figures
In your beautiful curves
They're good on the eyes
But bad for the nerves You are my encyclopedia
Let me take you home and read ya
You're an education in yourself
You're an education in yourself

Songwriters

DUBIN, AL/WARREN, HARRY Published by

Lyrics © Warner/Chappell Music, Inc. Song Discussions is protected by U.S. Patent 9401941. Other patents pending.

Lyrics provided by

<https://damnyrics.com/>