

The Plan

NOFX

Call it libertarian 'cos we do as we please don't need fear of force to foster no morality morals are a substitute concern in someone's ear They're basically a by-product of home, I think it clear
The plan, the plan
It's nothing like the bible, there's no lesson to be learned
It ain't the 10 commandments, 'cause nothing's written in stone
It has to do with freedom and personal liberty
I don't fuck with you, don't fuck with me
The blueprints of a better world were printed on a postage stamp No one bothered to read the front stick out their tongue to lick the back
The plan, the plan
If you're not part of the cure, you're part of the disease father time will tell us who concedes
The blueprints of a better world
disguised, getting revealed as fortunes Ten thousand chinese restaurant customers prefer not to read and when they're done don't think, just leaving (might be "eating") a turning point we call the plan.
