

In Stillness We Remain

Woman's Hour

If I were you
I think I wouldn't listen
If I were you
I think I couldn't sleep
I think I would wish for some light relief
To feel like no one else could see
If I were you
I'd dance around the answers
I'd try to class
My hands around these dots
Take me I will follow
Speak and we can fall into the yellow of last September
I will be your shadow
You look taller now than I remember
And still the sweets remain
If I were you
My tongue would turn in circles
If I could lie
I'd tell you not to doubt
I think I would wish for some relief
To feel like no one else could see
Take me I will follow
Speak and we can fall into the yellow of last September
I will be your shadow
You look taller now than I remember
And still the sweets remain
