I Stand

Idina Menzel

When you asked me, who I am
What is my vision? Do I have a plan?
Where is my strength? Have I nothing to say?
I hear the words in my head but I push them away
As I stand for the power to change
I live for the perfect day
I love till it hurts like crazy
I hope for a hero to save me
I stand for the strange and lonely
I believe there?s a better place
I don?t know if the sky is heaven
But I pray anyway
And I don't know what tomorrow brings
A road less traveled, will it set us free?
'Cause we're taking it slow, these tiny legacies
I don?t try and change the world
But what will you make of me?
As I stand for the power to change
I live for the perfect day
I love till it hurts like crazy
I hope for a hero to save me
I stand for the strange and lonely
I believe there's a better place
I don?t know if the sky is heaven
But I pray anyway
With the slightest of breezes

We fall just like leaves
As the rain washes us from the ground
We forget who we are
We can't see in the dark
And we quickly get lost in the crowd, oh, oh
I stand for the power to change
I live for the perfect day
I love till it hurts like crazy
I hope for a hero to save me
I stand for the power to change
I live for the perfect day
I love till it hurts like crazy

I hope for a hero to save me
I stand for the strange and lonely
I believe there's a better place
I don't know if the sky is heaven
But I pray anyway, oh
I stand for the power to change
I live for the perfect day
I love till it hurts like crazy
I hope for a hero to save me
I stand for the strange and lonely
I believe there's a better place
I don't know if the sky is heaven
But I pray anyway
