Heartbreak a Stranger

Bob Mould

Well days come and days go by
So it matters, so you say
But it's all coming back in a way
Nothing will ever change
The words exchanged for revenge inside
You know these things take timeNow and then, these words
They make me laugh so powerful
Going through several lies
They've never been so trueI know that I'm used to time
You know what it is, don't you?
Some words make us all cry
It's so talentedIf anybody could read my mind
And share with me these thoughts
Of all the enemies left behind
And friends that time forgotPretending nothing could ever faze you
Well, some things never change
Tell me why do these words ring home
How can you heartbreak a stranger?
Heartbreak a strangerWell days come, days go by
So it matters, so you say
But it's all coming back in a way
And everyone knows a way
And everybody runs away
From somebody who criesIf anybody could read my mind
And share with me these thoughts
Of all the enemies left behind
And friends that time forgotPretending nothing could ever faze you
Well, some things never change
Tell me why do these words ring home
How can you heartbreak a stranger?
Oh, heartbreak a stranger
Heartbreak a strangerOh, It's all coming back in a way
Oh, It's all coming back in a way
Oh, It's all coming back in a way
...

Lyrics provided by https://damnlyrics.com/