Vows

Dog's Eye View

Wish there was a stranger, sitting in this room
Our eyes could meet each other's
For the first time, now it's just my family
A bloodshot bride, and a wasted groomMaybe there's an angel
Laughing at us now
Trying to tell us something
That we should've learnedShe says "Are you listening to me now?"
Listening to me nowI used to have this dream you know
But I let it slip away
Traded it for something
I knew I could have but never really wantedListening to me now
Listening to me nowI wish I could say something
Instead of sitting here numb
I wish my mind, I wish my mind
Was not such a loaded gunAnd I wish I was a stranger sitting in this room
Our eyes could meet each other's
For the first time
But now it's too late for that

Lyrics provided by https://damnlyrics.com/