

Recalling the Truth

Robyn Hitchcock

Recalling the truth
The way that it seems
The way it falls
Between you and your dreams
The way you said yes
As you followed me in
You've been gone so long
Recalling the truth
Now what could that mean?
The truth can just change
Like the tide on the sea
When the river runs out
And the mountain grows still
You've been gone so long
A kiss on the stair
A heartbeat embrace
A kiss in the morning
On the side of your face
Recalling the truth
The window of bliss
The opens just once
For the price of a kiss
If the price is too high
Then to pay is a sin
You've been gone so long
You hide from yourself
But it's tracking you down
It was me that was lost
And it's you that I found
Recalling the truth
Whatever that was
It doesn't last long
Whatever does?
The men always end
Where the women begin
You've been gone so long
You've been gone so long
You've been gone

Lyrics provided by
<https://damnlyrics.com/>