Melpomene (Album Version)

Kashmir

Something tells me that I'm left without a chance in my suspicious attempts to get her close enough to close my lips around her smile now I can't close my eyes when she's around and she's around passing like the wind that shapes the clouds she is around, she is aroundi don't know how but suddenly it has been a while and we've been walking in through that same front door undressing like there were no parts to hide and calling each other names we never had you never heard and then an unexpected turn and we hit the kerb a stupid term, a fatal wordFlutter girl killing me with her sunshine sunshine
she's so unaware that she's my melpomeneyou broke the code just like i'm sure you always do without intentions but I know that's how I broke away from you now that the clouds are obsolete I hope you landed on your feet without those evil demons keeping you reminded of...the war they pulled us through as fragile hearts ran short of glue as we're both running out of time and seek to drown the fact in wine it should be honest and naive like we should give, we should receive I must be jaded fading out of fuction into solitudeFlutter girl
that she's my melpomeneFlutter girl

that she's my melpomene
