

Snowman

Eskobar

They made the snowman take of his clothes
Take off his fur, take off his claws
Take off his soul 'cause what he had done
Now they did to him
It seemed like the perfect thing to do But was it true?
His eyes were, oh, so blue
Didn't wear shoes They put him away for all to see
'Cause they were afraid of what he could be
But he was the same as you and me
They put him away for the rest of his being They made the snowman take out his eyes
Take off his skin, take out his heart
Take out his gold 'Cause what he had done
Now they did to him
It seemed like the perfect thing to do But was it true?
His eyes were also blue
Didn't wear shoes They put him away for all to see
'Cause they were afraid of what he could be
But he was the same as you and me
Put us away for the rest of our being
