

I'm Fine

Vio

You will play the sweetheart,
I will play the kid.
Hit by the love dart, acting as it were forbid. Well you can feel your potential,
you just need help in letting go.
All going fundamental, showing what they've got to show. Lean up to the wall now, would you.
And tell me how you're feeling, would you.
I'm fine, fine, fine, fine. Let me take you higher.
Let me take you low.
Prolonging the silence.
Asking me not to stop. You will play the princess,
I will play the prince.
A gentleman always,
unless it's getting in the way. You share a little moment,
a feeling where you simply know.
A silent agreement to let one know before you go. Set your arms around me, would you.
And tell me how you're feeling, would you.
I'm fine, fine, fine, fine. Let me take you higher.
Let me take you low.
Prolonging the silence.
Asking me not to stop. Turn you on a little louder.
Feel it take control.
Bringing out your finest.
Asking me for more. You will play the bridegroom,
she will play the bride.
Sailing to the sunset, standing at the night's only. Well if you ever thought you would now you can wrong me as you please and want to and feel me wherever you want to. I'm fine, fine, fine, fine.
See it in your mind, mind, mind.
Taking over mine, mine, mine. Let me take you higher.
Let me take you low.
Prolonging the silence.
Asking me not to stop. Turn you on a little louder.
Feel it take control.
Bringing out your finest.
Asking me for more.
