

299 796 km/s

In the Woods...

Not long ago-in mind - we picked our choice and we gathered together - greeted nature by storm our bodies layed down as we fell...
And our faces turned away from the earth we trembled into the world of dreams The cradle of imaginationOur knowledge was complete all our needs fulfilled we could not feel a fairytale so unreal for adventures like me and you being nothing but shadows of our mortal selves I a way, I perceive myself as my own god my own master and my own slave I am but a thrall towards my own desires Just when it all seems so hopelessly to break free from what I have done I will try, do it all over again, and flow with the waves like the sun I draw parallels between intuitions and instincts I carried since dawn when dusk comes, I would like to see I was wrong, though I still am a thrall towards my own desiresoceans of infinity...
-one shall seldom witness such forces in motion one shall seldom take their part
-we join and we breath genesis and revelation whatever that happened as we came along
-for we stepped into what we had remembered as the world of dreams
-the source of imaginationwe crawled out from our drunken sleep, though we could not understand from heaven to hell one shall seldom witness such forces in motion one shall seldom take their part we joined and breathed genesis and revelation whatever that happened like an infant still crawling in its mother's womb A Jesus Christ whom never left... Not long ago, in mind, we picked our choice

-gathered together and greeted nature by storm from heaven to hell from all to none, and father to son

Song Discussions is protected by U.S. Patent 9401941. Other patents pending.

Lyrics provided by <https://damnllyrics.com/>