Lost Identity

Day Six

Wake up
Why are you here?
You don't need to answer
Where's your fear, your agony
The truth will be slowly unfoldWhat have I done
And why am I here
Curtains blinding the sun
Sleep while I'm walking and ache during talking
Disbelief and so afraid
Look in your eyes, your face, into your soul
The clock that's ticking on the wall
It makes me insane, remove them allI'm leaving tomorrow
I'll break through the fence
And so much for this sorrow
Continue my plans again
Back to the world of iceAnd who is that guy
He's acting so strange
Have you noticed he's shy?
He's hopelessly dying and constantly crying
But then again, why should I care
I must confess, his pain is way to strong
[So much for answers]
So much for answers, science falls
Help me break this chain, release them all
