

Fine, Great

Modern Baseball

I hate worrying about the future
Cause all my current problems are based around the past
And I hate when you call me late at night
Just to check in to make sure I got nothing to be sad about. But it's alright, and I'm okay
I won't need your help anyway
Ah well...

I hate having to think about my future when all I wanna do is worry about everyone but me. I'm so tired, or maybe just bored
I can't really tell the difference whenever I'm talking to you
And I know that
You just adore
Starting off with me that way that there's no way that I'll assume That you're wasting all of my time
To vent about your problems like how your Instagram stopped working
And how your friends bailed on you
But it was funny cause it was the day you were supposed to hang with me (Yeah... About that...) I'm guilty as charge for leading you on A lie that I know is easy to see
But it's crucial to blot out any Signs that I might have feelings This way you don't ask me how am I
This way you won't force me to proceed
With actually having to tell you my worries
With actually having you give a damn about me You giving a damn about...
I hate worrying about the future
Cause all my fucking problems are based around my past
And I hate when you call me late at night
Just to check in to make sure I got nothing to be sad about
But it's alright and I'm okay
I won't need your help anyway
Ah well...

I hate having to think about my future when all I wanna do is worry about everyone but me.

Song Discussions is protected by U.S. Patent 9401941. Other patents pending.

Lyrics provided by

<https://damnllyrics.com/>