My Time Outside The Womb

Titus Andronicus

The first thing you see is the light
Then, you focus on a man in a mask with a knife
As he cuts you away from everything
You thought you knew about lifeNow you're in your mother's arms, wrinkled and wet
You'll spend the rest of your life trying to hard to forget
That you met the world naked and screaming
And that's how you'll leave itIn Riverside Hospital, on a July morning
With a push and a pull this is how I found out
I wasn't quite so invulnerable
It put the fear of God in me when I heard my daddy say
'One mistake is all that it takes'I ended up at Central School, 1993
And met a certain kid named Sarim at the library
He said, "They're ain't nothing about this place that's elementary"
I learned to play the guitar in the seventh grade
In order to convince everyone I was a renegade
