House Full of Blues

Gary Moore

(Gary Moore)
I would have done anything to make you mine.
Sold everything to buy you a ring, stopped drinking the wine.
But I was a fool to play by your rules.
But everyone said, you're better off dead,
than get yourself hurt.But you left me.
Yeah, you left me
living in a house full of blues.
Yeah, you left me.
Yeah, you left me
living in a house full of blues.I kidded myself that nobody else could take you away until that day when you turned and ran.
And I was a fool to play by your rules.
And everyone said, you're better off dead,
than get yourself hurt.But you left me.
Yeah, you left me
living in a house full of blues.
Well, you left me.
That's where you left me
living in a house full of blues.Yes, you did.
Yeah.
Yeah.
Yeah.
Yeah.I would have done anything to make you mine.
I would have sold everything to buy you a ring, stopped drinking the wine.
But I was a fool to play by your rules.
Took all that I had, turned everything bad
and now it's all gone.You left me,
that's where you left me.
You left me living in a house full of blues.
Yeah, you left me.
Oh lord, you left me
You left me living in a house full of blues.Living in a house of blues.
Living in a house of blues.
Living in a house of blues, yes you did.
Living in a house of blues.That's where you left me, left me,
living in a house of blues.
Living in a house, living in a house,
living in a house of blues.That's where you left me, left me,

living in a house of blues.
Living in a house of blues.
You left me living in a house of blues.
