

Yesterday's Bed

Troy Cassar-Daley

I should be happy with her lying beside me tonight,
But as long as your memories still here it'll never feel right.
As I look at her and I wish it was you here instead,
So tired of pretending while I'm sleeping in yesterday's bed.

So many times I'd tried so hard to let go,
And I learnt how to trial through the hurt so the pain wouldn't show.
But just when I thought those feelings were finally dead,
I woke up this morning still sleeping in yesterday's bed

Chorus

Sleeping in yesterday's bed,
feeling your soft lips on mine.
And I can't help remembering loving you time after time.
I guess I should feel guilty right now because I can't get you out of my head, stuck here with your memeory still sleeping in yesterday's bed.

She thinks she knows me just like the back of her hand,
But there's a dark side of me that even I can't understand.
If she really knew me she'd see through every word that I've said,
Cause my heart can't be hers while I'm sleeping in yesterdays bed.

Chorus

Sleeping in yesterday's bed,
feeling your soft lips on mine.
And I can't help remembering loving you time after time,
I guess I should feel guilty right now because I can't get you out of my head. Stuck here with your memory still sleeping in yesterday's bed.

Well I guess I should feel guilty right now,
Because I can't get you out of my head. Stuck here with your memory still sleeping in yesterday's bed

Stuck here with your memory still sleeping in yesterday's bed.

Lyrics Submitted by Sione Tonga

Lyrics provided by
<https://damnyrics.com/>