

The Siren

Graveyard

I was captive on a slave boat rowing through the swamp they threw me off into the lake of alligators eyes were glowing in the dark, and fear was in the air as the beasts were closing in, panic struck my mind swimming through the mud, yes I was swimming through the mud and a thousand flamingos led my way, riding to the feast for I was gonna meet my doom Tonight a demon came into my head and tried to choke me in my sleep
Tonight a demon came into my head and tried to choke me in my sleep
I thought it was a feast of friends but lord they proved me wrong what seemed to be my rescue turned out to be a trap suddenly I was alone inside the demon's house He climbed the walls with blood and murder glowing through his eyes and I couldn't escape and every move I made was wrong.
Tonight a demon came into my head and tried to choke me in my sleep
Tonight a demon came into my head and tried to choke me in my sleep
In the shape of skins of Sirens he's induced me with his song trying to choke me and leave me in my sleep Don't wake me up before the demon takes my soul Fear and anger made my face turn white as snow, My blood turned cold as ice, my legs began to shake
There was no way - I was gonna let the demon win
In the darkest hour, my woman brought me back to life
She heard my screams, she woke me from my dream
But I still got the demon trapped inside my head Tonight a demon came into my head and tried to choke me in my dream
Tonight a demon came into my head and tried to choke me in my dream
I still have the demon back inside my head she must be some Siren
she is in my dream
