Nobody Wins

Mats RÃ¥dberg

Hold your head up high, you're never wrong,
Somewhere in the right, you belong,
You would rather fight, then walk away.
What a lonely way, to breathe the air,
What an unlovely way, to say you care,
Now we're to far gone, for me to save.

and i never thought that we'd come to this,

Maybe there's beauty in goodbye,
(no-ones wrong or right,you would rather fight than walk away)
There's just no reason left to try,
(now it's gone too far, look at where we are)
You push me away, another black day,
Lost count of the reasons to cry.
Look what you've missed, living like this,
Nobody wins.

Searching for the truth, in your eyes
I find myself so lost, don't recognize,
The person now that you, you claim to be.
Don't know when to stop, or where to start,
You're just so caught up, with who you are,
and now you're far too high, for me to see

And i never thought that we'd come to this,

Maybe there's beauty in goodbye,
(no-ones wrong or right you would rather fight than walk away)
There's just no reason left to try,
(now it's gone to far, look at where we are)
You push me away, another black day,
Lost count of the reasons to cry,
Look what you've missed, living like this,
Nobody wins.

You, never say you're sorry,
Try to tell me that you love me,
But don't, it's too late to take it there

Maybe there's beauty in goodbye,
(no-ones wrong or right, you would rather fight than walk away)
There's just no reason left to try,
(now it's gone too far, look at where we are)
You push me away, another black day,
Lost count of the reasons to cry,
Look what you've missed, living like this,
Nobody wins.

Lyrics powered by lyrics.tancode.com
written by MAGNESS, CLIF/DIOGUARDI, KARA/ORIGLIASSO, JESSICA Lyrics Â© EMI Music Publishing, BUG MUSIC

Lyrics provided by https://damnlyrics.com/