When spring arrives,
And the grass shoots appear,
We move to the spring camp,
What a boundless earth,
Such a long, long journey.

When summer arrives,
Lush grass grows,
We move to the summer camp,
What a boundless earth,

Such a long, long journey.

When autumn arrives,
Plants wither and dry,
We move to the autumn camp,
What a boundless earth,
Such a long, long journey.

When winter arrives,
Plants dead and gone,
We move to the winter camp,
What a boundless earth,
Such a long, long journey.
