Autumn

The Edgar Winter Group

Autumn, the wind blows colder than summer
Autumn, my love's gone with another
I can't demand anything of myself now
So I guess I'll stay here in New England
For autumnBuildings look tall and gray
Birds flying, haven't much to say
They all know that it's coming again
So I guess they'll stay here in New England
For autumn, autumnDid you ever lose something
That you thought you knew?
Did you ever lose someone
Who was close to you?
Well I lost my lover
And my summer tooTo autumn, the wind blows colder than summer
Autumn, my love's gone with another
I can't demand anything of myself now
So I guess I'll stay here in New England
For autumn, autumn

Lyrics provided by https://damnlyrics.com/