

Ms. Williams

Will Hoge

Ms. Williams, where did you stay last night?
Say, you wasn't home till the sun was shining way too bright
The way you wear your hair, I know it surely was not right
Ms. Williams, could you tell me where you stayed last night? Sun goes down and it's the same old thing
Float the whiskey river to the mountains of cocaine
Looking for that one true love to tell her she's a star
Instead she's drinking with a long haired boy that plays a rock and roll guitar She just wants to shine
Her heart gets broken every time
But she knows one day soon she'll find
Ms. Williams, where did you stay last night? In a wedding dress that no one wore
See the whole world's on fire so she slams the door
With a Bible on the front seat and a shotgun in the floor
She points her headlights to Hollywood 'cause she wants so much more She just wants to shine
Her heart gets broken every time
But she knows one day soon she'll find
Ms. Williams, where did you stay last night? Ms. Williams, could you tell me where you stayed last night?
Say you wasn't home till the sun was shining far too bright
The way you wear your long brown hair, I know it could not right
Ms. Williams, could you tell me where you stayed last night?
