

Don't You Know You're Beautiful

Seabird

Don't you remember
You were happy when you were younger
Things were so simple, yeah
'Til the day you walked out on your motherBut now you blame yourself because you're by yourself
And you feel like it's not gonna to change
You're crying on the floor 'cause you can take no more
Looking for a way to escapeAnd all this time saying you were fine
And everyone still to blame
Well there you are, you and your broken heart
It's written all over your faceDon't you know, don't you know that you're beautiful? Yeah
Don't you know, don't you know that you're beautiful?I see you laughing
But I know inside that you're crying
Just tell me what happened when things went wrong
We'll try to make sense of it allPlease don't blame yourself 'cause you're not by yourself
I've been right here all along
Don't have to be alone because you've always known
Wherever your heart is my homeAnd all this time saying you were fine
And everyone still to blame
Well there you are, you and your broken heart
It's written all over you're faceDon't you know, don't you know that you're beautiful? Yeah
Don't you know, don't you know that you're beautiful?
Can't you see what you mean to me?
Can't you see what you mean to me?Don't you know, don't you know that you're beautiful? Yeah
Don't you know, don't you know that you're beautiful?
Yeah, don't you know, don't you know that you're beautiful?

Lyrics provided by
<https://damlyrics.com/>