

Drown

Gravity Kills

I feel your reflection
But you're a stranger to me
I saw you staring back now
Your shadow right next to me Can you be my enemy, my disease
Looking through, what's left of you to hold on to Drowning
Hold my head down under
Wading
You touch what you can't feel You ought to break my silence
You know you have too much to lose
You think that you're so holy
You think you're breaking me in two Cover me in misery, and anything
I'm still here, you're still here, am I still here? Drowning
Hold my head down under
Wading
You touch what you can't feel Perversion
Perversion Drown in silence
In my violence
Drown in silence
Things are better left undone Can you be my enemy, my disease
Looking through, what's left of you to hold on to Drowning
Wading
You touch what you can't feel Drowning
Hold my head down under
Wading
You touch what you can't feel Perversion
