Rearview

Joshua Scott Jones

I use to tell myself that you would wait
I borrowed time for two and I twisted fate
I left us floating in the air for the wind to hold on to
It let me down, it let you go
I drive around like everything's okay
And I feel the lightening in our own mistakes
And I was gonna tell you, I wish all our wrongs could be right
I'm too late, I looked in my rearview and now I don't see you
Sometimes the things you want are hard to take
Sometimes the ones you love are risks, you don't make, yeah
The dust has settled into nothingness and I yearn for yesterday
Just look around, I'm still the same
I drive around like everything's okay like everything's okay
And I feel the lightening in my own mistakes
And I was gonna tell you, I wish all our wrongs could be right

I'm too late, I looked in my rearview and now I don't see you
So many things that we didn't say
So many reasons the world's not the same
Oh, it's not the same
I drive around like nothing here has changed
But I know the sky has one more cloud to break
And I was gonna tell you, I wish all our wrongs could be right
I'm too late, I looked in my rearview and now I don't see you
I said I drive and everything has changed, oh
And I feel the lightening it's in my own mistakes
And I was gonna tell you, I wish all our wrongs could be right
I'm too late, I looked in my rearview and now I don't see you
I used to tell myself that you would wait
