

My Name (Revisited)

The Classic Crime

I have seen my own gravestone and worshiped the golden statue I've made my bed in the lion's den and walked in dead man's shoes I have witnessed coastline from a bird's eye view
And I made the request that we plunge to our death so that I could get to You I will walk through the fire
I will not be afraid
They can take everything that I have
But they can't give me my name I have climbed every bookshelf
In search of hardcover proof
And if I am judged by the things I have loved
I hope some of them are true
