The Wretched

The Word Alive

You're dead to meIt might be hard to understand I'll show the world who you really are So just step asideSo let this be the beginning The time of liars and thieves is descending

And let this be your warning

The path of the wretched is burningI thought I knew you, now you can't save your name

We won't follow the deceiver

Don't try to silence my words with your lies We won't follow the deceiverWhat were you searching for

When you stabbed me in the back?

What were you lying for?

When we gave you all you had? I finally see that you've fallen away

From the bond that we had I fear it won't be the same

I thought I knew you but you threw it away

Now you're dead to me, fuck youI thought I knew you, now you can't save your name

We won't follow the deceiver

Don't try to silence my words with your lies

We won't follow the deceiver This is what I expected

Another life lesson is what I'm left with

Look at what you've started

A war of words is what we'll part withSo don't act like you don't know exactly what you really are

The truth will find us both in the end, in the end

The difference being that it will show me blameless

While it robs you of your breathYour deceiving is worthy of receiving an end

So don't act like you don't know what you are my friend

I thought I knew you now you can't save your name

We won't follow the deceiver This is what I expected

Look at what you've started

A war of words is what we'll part with This is what I expected

(We won't follow the deceiver)

Another life lesson is what I'm left withLook at what you've started

(We won't follow the deceiver)

A war of words is all we'll part with

(We won't follow the deceiver) You're dead to me

So don't act like you don't know
