

Foggy Day

Cecilia Dale

Another foggy day in this old town
Hidden by the mist that's all around
I walk the street though they don't know my name
Been so long call them home all the same

Another foggy day in this old town
The heart of the sun beats without a sound
I pace the street to drive away the gloom
And contemplate the air that I consume
Yeah, yeah, yeah

Another foggy day but I'm elsewhere
Surfing skies like oceans of blue air
I let the current carry me away
Out of range of narrow minded ways

Above the city's gaze I climb and climb
I leave the weight of urban grime behind
I sail through clouds and float on silver skies
The world's a nicer place from up on high
Yeah, yeah

Another foggy day in this old town
Hidden by the mist that's all around
I walk the street though they don't know my name
It's been so long call them home all the same

Another foggy day in this old town
The heart of the sun beats without a sound
I pace the street to drive away the gloom
And contemplate the air that I consume
Yeah, yeah, yeah
