

To an Air Hostess

Clifford T. Ward

The engines roared, the aeroplane soared
And I waited with baited breath for the worst
But everything connected, there was nothing unexpected
Until she appeared looking calm and collected. I fell in love with an air hostess
Together we flew the skies with, Air France
I wanted to give her a copy of my record
But I did not have the self confidence I fell from such a great height
And wonder if I will ever land? I fell in love with an air hostess
Together we flew the skies with, Air France
I wanted to give her a copy of my record
But I did not have the self confidence I fell from such a great height
And wonder if I will ever land? He fell in love with an air hostess
Together they flew the skies with, Air France
He wanted to give her a copy of his record
But he did not have the self confidence He fell in love with an air hostess
Together they flew the skies with, Air France
He wanted to give her a copy of his record
But he did not have the self confidence
